James S. Murray Gallery

Lincoln Land Community College reviews applications on an ongoing basis for exhibitions of creative work in the James S. Murray Gallery in Menard Hall on the Springfield campus. We are seeking a wide range of media and methods for exhibition. There is no limit on professional experience, grad students are encouraged to apply. Our goal is to challenge and enlighten our students through direct contact with the visual arts. The gallery is small, approx. 25' X 25', but with good lighting and professional installation. We charge no application fee. Sales are encouraged and we take no commission. Interested buyers will be referred directly to the artist.

SORRY – but there is no current budget for shipping or openings!!

We do, however, advertise and promote the exhibits in the central Illinois area. We also have a small budget for postcards and other promotional materials.

We have six shows to fill each academic year outside of our faculty show and our student show. Shows are generally three to four weeks in length and correspond with a typical college school year: the first show of year opens mid August the day the college opens for fall semester. The gallery is closed in the evenings and over the weekends and when the college is out for break.

Work may be delivered in person or shipped at the artist's expense. Shipped work should be packaged in sturdy, reusable containers. We will repack work as it is packed when we receive it. The expense of return shipping, if applicable, is the responsibility of the artist. Work will be insured while in the possession of Lincoln Community College.

Work must fit through a 36" doorway. Weight limit: 75 pounds per piece. Wall mounted pieces: under 10 pounds. Please no complex installations – we are simple folks with a simple a gallery.
